VETERAN FIREMEN HOLD THEIR FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET

The Veteran Firemen's Association of Daly City held their first annual banquet last Saturday evening, February 5, at the Colonial Cafe, 6188 Mission street.

A large number of veterans and friends, numbering ninety-five, gathered around the tables. The banquet room was decorated for the occasion. In one end of the room reposed the first hose reel, which was constructed by Comrade Goldkohl twenty years ago. On the walls, side by side with Old Glory, hung the only flag belonging to the vets, the banner of service. Crossed fire axes and fire shovels hung on the opposite wall lent an air of the times gone by, when that was the only means the firemen had with which to fight fires.

A unique feature for table decorations was a one and one-half inch fire hose which extended around the outer edge of all the tables. Here and there an old fire trumpet and an old fire nozzle was placed on the tables. At each end of every table an old leather fire bucket, in which reposed a bottle of Daly City water, served to remind the veterans of the olden days. The members were always called to order by the sound of a fire gong.

A spirit of social friendship prevailed, and the comrades enjoyed the elaborate program prepared by the committee.

President A. J. Green appointed Trustee A. J. Bodien, also a comrade, as toastmaster for the evening. Assistant Chief F. A. Hansen was presented with a beautiful Past President emblem by President Green.

In behalf of the citizens of Daly City, Trustee H. Sundermann presented to the association a massive altar, which was cheerfully received by the members.

Toastmaster A. J. Bodien at this time, in behalf of the members of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie No. 1848, Fraternal Order of Eagles, presented the president with a beautiful silver mounted gavel, saying that he hoped the president would use it and rule with an iron hand. The vets paused for a moment and then cried out: "Discipline is what made this organization possible."

Several comrades of the San Francisco Veterans' Association were present as invited guests. Among these were Past President Lieutenant H. Tricon and Charles Reimfeld, who made a few remarks.

Throughout the evening short talks were made by Chief J. J. Kennedy, William Goldkohl, G. R. Augustien, T. P. Moran, E. J. Ford, C. F. Rodenberger, F. A. Hansen and our city marshal, J. Doyle.

The committee arranged a good musical program of singing and dancing. The vocal numbers were exceptionally "Good."

And now for the repast, which was as complete as a modern fire truck is equipped, which means everything from soup to nuts. Oh, yes! and table manners such as "May I trouble you for," and "Please pass," and "Will you kindly." No, nothing like that. This is what the writer heard at the table: "Say, Bill, 'hook' me a hunk of bread. When Ed. Ford filled a glass to the brim with ginger ale, some one asked: "Can you 'spaner,' Ed?" "'Roll' me a length' of celery. 'Couple up' to another piece of steak, Joe." When the chicken was piled up before Al Green, some one was heard to say, "Can you 'bucket,' Al?" Way down at the end sat the Siamese twins, the two Bills, Goldkohl and Poppino. "Hand up" some of that "truck" will you. Some needed a "nozzle" to drink their soup, and when the accordion player was asked to play some more, he replied: "What do you think I am, a 'pumper?'" And then, as he went home, Gus Schenk said: "I'll see you fellers 'ladder.'"

The hour was getting late, the veterans voted the affair a grand success, and at the "tap" of the "gong" all retired to their "bunks."

SPLENDID PROGRAM ENJOYED BY STARS

Following the business meeting of Crocker Chapter No. 382, Order of the Eastern Star, last Monday evening, the members and visitors were entertained by the presentation of a program contributed by the Job's Daughters, who put on a short playlet, which was thoroughly apreciated, while the members of the Jefferson Union high school dramatics class, under the direction of Miss Potter, presented a number of pantomimes, their work indicating considerable talent upon the part of the actors.

At the conclusion of the program a banquet was served, those who participated in the program being the guests of honor. The tables were prettily decorated, and the menu was all that could be desired.

SPEND MILLIONS FOR HIGHWAYS

California motorists contributed a net total of $6,913,700.05 toward the maintenance and repair of state and county highways in automobile license fees paid during 1926, according to an announcement made by Frank G. Snook, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Of this huge sum, $3,721,414.55 was paid directly to the State Highway Commission for use on state highways. The counties of the state received a like sum, but $529,129.06 was deducted to pay the salaries and expenses of traffic officers, leaving a net total of $3,192,285.50 which was apportioned, on the basis of automoble registrations, to the various counties for road work.

The apportionment was made on total fee paid registration of vehicles of 1,641,551—the largest in the history or California.

The sum apportioned is the largest ever reported, exceeding that apportioned in 1925 by $407,481.75.

Indicative of California's unparalled prosperity, Snook's report shows a gain of 11 per cent in motor vehicle registrations. The net gain in motor vehicles was 164,545.

Every county, said the motor vehicle chief, showed substantial increases. Los Angeles county, with a total registration of 646,907, received $1,464,096.56, the largest sum paid any county. San Francisco, with registrations of 128,290 vehicles, received $292,089.45, the second largest amount. Alameda county registered 129,644 vehicles and received a net total of $245,211.35.

Records of the division indicate, Snook said, that delinquent fees collected by the traffic officers and fines resulting from arrests they made will amount to vastly more than their salaries.

FINE RECORDS MADE BY LOCAL STUDENTS

Three girls and one boy made the honor roll last Monday when report cards were issued at Jefferson Union high school. Forty-seven students were also placed on the college recommendable roll.

Those who made the honor roll were: Albert Ambrosio, Rosemary Reed, Viola Rehaume, and Elizabeth Saame.

Those on the college recommendable roll were: Albert Belli, Thurston Bentley, Ed. Blaylock, Henry Boynton, Wilson Brown, Lida Casentini, Ed. Devincenzi, Anna Everhart, Oriel Fischer, Mildred Franklin, Norma Furlong, Helen Ginsberg, Helen Green, Ralph Hammer, Louise Harbaugh, Eva Johnson, William Jost, Lawrence Kennedy, Norman Kennedy, Harold Martin, Ethel Metcalf, Fred Millhauses, John Muller, Charles Nelsson, Jeanette Olson, Paul Passaglia, Marie Pope, Phillip Pope, Joe Rachetta, Margaret Rose, Benny Roth, Francis Sampson, Marcella Savage, Donald Smith, Edna Smith, Evelyn Smith, Francis Stark, Henry Suenderman, Bill Sweeney, Ed. Taggart, Gifford Teel, Anna Tromberg, Delilah Valdivia, Richard Varni, Andrew Vireno, Lenore Wittmer, Beulah Womach.

LIBERTY BELLES CLUB SURPRISE PRESIDENT

The Liberty Belles Club met at the home of Mrs. R. Draper, on Fulton street, on Wednesday last. After much important business had been transacted, a delicious repast was served. A gorgeous basket of California flowers, in the center of which was a silk American flag, was presented to President Lillian Landini. The presentation speech by Mrs. Emma Boehm will long be remembered by those present. Mrs. Landini was overcome with pleasure and surprise; however she expressed her appreciation in accepting the gift. Mrs. Landini is entering upon her second year as president of the Liberty Belles Club, the past year being a most successful and gratifying year to the members.

MEXICAN STABBED IN STREET BRAWL

Jesus Torsi, a Mexican laborer, was found unconscious in a pool of blood in the street in South San Francisco early Wednesday morning, with a knife stuck in his chest near the heart, and his death is momentarily expected. Joseph Mora, a fellow countryman, was found hiding in a nearby house. Mora says he stabbed Torsi in self defense when Torsi attempted to hold him up. During moments of consciousness, Torsi told Chief of Police Louis Belloni that there had been a party at 9 Olive street, and that an argument had occurred over a card game, and Mora stabbed him with a pocket knife.

SCHOLARSHIP TO BE AWARDED BY THE HIGH ALUMNI

The Alumni Association of Jefferson Union high school held its regular semi-semesterly meeting last Thursday at Jefferson high. After some discussion, plans for a big Alumni-Senior banquet were dropped. During the past two years the Juniors have always given the Seniors the graduation banquet. This was because there was no Alumni Association, which customarily gives the dinner. Now when the association planned to give the banquet for the first time, it found the tradition so firmly entrenched that the banquet should be a Junior-Senior one, rather than an Alumni-Senior one, that plans were finally dropped after months of discussion. The Association, while deeply desiring to be the host itself, felt that breaking of traditions was far more dangerous than losing a meal, and gracefully yielded to the Juniors.

As the Alumni constitituon requires it to honor the Senior class each year in some fitting manner, it was voted to give a scholarship of $100 a year to the best graduating Senior who plans to continue his education. This is the first scholarship awarded in this district. President Saarinen appointed the scholarship committee for 1927 as follows: Mildred Ross, Edward Goldkuhl, Harold Fischer, Marc Worst and Principal N. O. Best as chairman.

The Association constitution was adopted after a six months discussion.

Plans were made, and Rosa Bauer, entertainment committee chairman, instructed to make arrangements for a dance on Friday, May 13. The proceeds will be used for the Alumni scholarship.

Following the Jefferson High Alumni Association meeting Thursday evening, a meeting of the scholarship committee was called by the chairman, Principal N. O. Best. A point system as follows was prepared: For each A in a one credit course each semester, 3 points; each B, 2 points, each C, 1 point, and each D, negative one point. Half credit courses will receive half of these. Points will also be given for student body activity, as follows: President, secretary and treasurer, 1 point; vice-president, class president, sergeant-at-arms, boys' and girls' athletic managers, entertainment committee chairmen, each one-fourth of a point.

As the editors of the Totem Pole and Jefferson Spirit receive credit for journalism, they were awarded no extra credit. Winning of a block also brings one-fourth point.

In the event of a tie, highest scholarship will always decide. If there is still a tie the scholarship committee for that year will vote on the winner. The scholarship will be paid $10 a month for each month the winner is in attendance at college for one year. If at any time the student leaves college during the year, other than vacations or sickness, the payments will cease. The winner shall not have spent more than four years in high school, of which the last two must be at Jefferson.

This scholarship is a big step forward for the association, consisting of only sixteen members. They have taken on a real man-sized task.

LOCAL EAGLES FORM BOOSTER COMMITTEE

Not content with their present rapid growth, the Colma-Vista Grande Aerie, No. 1848, Fraternal Order of Eagles, one of our oldest and most prominent local organizations, has appointed a booster committee to advertise still more the largest Daly City and Colma society we have. The committee consists of Messrs. L. Shaw, S. Pfeifer, A. Linden, A. J. Bodien, F. Collins and O. Shram. Mr. Wm. Bolger is chairman. The first meeting was held Wednesday evening at the home of A. J. Bodien.

Their purpose is to formulate, boost and "pep" plans for the Aerie. They will also try to speed up plans for the proposed new Aerie building on San Jose avenue, between Shakespeare and Bepler. They will make preparations for a suitable welcome to the new monster class which will soon be initiated.

YOUTH INJURED IN GAS FURNACE BLAST

Ray Williams, aged 19, of San Carlos, is in St. Mary's hospital, San Francisco, suffering painful burns as the result of a flare-back from a gas furnace in San Francisco. For a time it was feared that the young man would lose his sight, but hopes are now entertained for his full recovery. The accident occurred at the plant of the Miller Lithograph Company, when the young man attempted to light the furnace.

BANCITALY CORP. ANNOUNCES NEW FINANCING PLAN

With the intention of effectively controlling the market situation, Bancitaly Corporation will issue one million shares of its stock, within the next few days, it has been announced by A. P. Giannini.

Determination to halt current buying activity, and prevent sky-rocketing of prices is back of this present move, Giannini said.

"In announcing the purpose of this 1,000,000 share stock issue, Bancitaly Corporation is simply taking the public into its confidence," said Giannini. "While this may be an unusual policy for some organizations, it is the way we have always done business. We are going to protect the investing public, and do not propose to see them paying an unwarranted price for our stock." Giannini was emphatic in his statement that no extra dividend, or increase in the rate would be considered, under prevailing conditions.

"The issue of 1,000,000 shares is being brought out for the sole purpose of preventing our stock from being run up in price, and if we are unable to stop it with this amount, more will be issued until the market demand becomes rational. While it is difficult to employ this added capital profitabley under investment conditions as they exist now, we believe that the money can be used to earn enough to satisfy present dividend requirements.

"We shall continue the dividend on the same basis of $2.24 a year," he said. "We want this to be taken as a word of caution, to anyone who purchases the stock with the hope or expectation of any more immediate substantial return."

Terms of the new issue provide that 450,000 of the 1,000,000 shares will be priced at $100, and present stockholders will have the right to subscribe on the basis of one share of each five now owned. The remaining 550,000 shares will be held in the treasury, to be sold, when necessary, at a price of not less than $100.

Stockholders will be asked to waive their rights for 550,000 shares of the new issue, in order that stock used to hold the market during the period of its recent activity, may be restored, and to provide for such other adjustments as may be encountered under the present program. A letter to stockholders outlining the terms of the offer will be mailed within the course of the next few days.

DE MOLAY MEMBERS PLAY BASKETBALL

After only one night of practice, the Crocker Chapter, Order of DeMolay, basketball team traveled to South San Francisco Wednesday evening and received the short end of a 14 to 32 score at the hands of the Young Men's Association of South San Francisco. Albert Saarinen was high point man for the DeMolay team, scoring ten points. The starting lineup was: Albert Saarinen and Elmer Blaylock, forwards; Dave Gehringer, center; Howard Roof and Tom La Sata, guards. As the team was new, all the substitutes played in an endeavor to find a good combination. They were: Maxwell Rae, Henry Blaylock, Edward Kingsland, George Barner. Elmer Blaylock is manager of the team.

FAVOR PLAN FOR COAST HIGHWAY

Supervisors representing the Coast counties from Humboldt on the north to San Luis Obispo on the south met in San Francisco last week and agreed upon a tentative plan of co-operation for the purpose of supplementing United States Highway 101 in such a manner as to make it an all-shore line road from British Columbia to Mexico.

This movement has been under development for some time and the meeting of last week was due to the co-operation of Supervisor Charles F. Todd, of San Francisco, who invited the different county supervisors to meet in one of the committee rooms of the City Hall.

A preliminary organization was formed, which will further discuss the matter at the annual convention of the State Association of Supervisors to be held in Sacramento in March.

Under the United States highway plan, which has been officially approved by the Secretary of Agriculture, United States Highway No. 101, starting at Port Angeles, Washington, and ending at the Mexican line below San Diego, follows the shore line closely except between Eureka and Sausalito and San Francisco and Gaviota.

To supply shore line roads in these sections is the plan of the National Automobile Club and it is their declaration that these links, when completed, will supply the world's most scenic highway, about 1,700 miles in length, within the sound of the Pacific ocean practically all the way.

BUSINESS PLACE BEING ENLARGED

The building at 6288 Mission street, occupied by the Daly City Billiard Parlor, which is conducted by M. Vernengo & Co., is being enlarged. Two rooms are being added, with a depth of twenty feet, the work now nearing completion.

When this addition to the building has finally been completed, there will be considerable more room in this popular resort, and it is the intention of Mr. Vernengo to install some new pool tables and make other improvements which were not possible before the construction of the addition.

BOARD LISTENS TO PROTEST AGAINST POLO CLUB STABLE

A discussion between District Attorney Franklin Swart and Attorney James T. O'Keefe of Redwood City featured the meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors at Redwood City last Monday, when a protest against the construction of stables at Beresford were filed. Attorney O'Keefe represented petitioners who sought to prevent the Polo Field Syndicate from completing construction of stables on the ground that the structures are within only a few feet of established residences.

After introducing the testimony of his witnesses, Attorney O'Keefe called upon the district attorney to bring suit on behalf of the county to prevent construction of the buildings. District Attorney Swart explained that his office was not in a position to carry on legal actions for private parties. The suit to prevent construction of the buildings, Swart explained, would be a purely private action, and as such would not come within the jurisdiction of his office.

This brought a protest from Attorney O'Keefe, who declared that his clients have been hard pressed by such matters as an attempted incorporation and various taxable improvements.

District Attorney Swart suggested that a sanitary district be formed by Beresford, declaring that only through such a district could a menace to health be regulated or abolished.

After a half hour of argument, a motion prevailed that the county health officer make an exhaustive investigation and report back to the board of supervisors, the health officer being instructed to make his report next Monday.

Bids for the sale of $40,000 bonds recently voted by the Hillsborough grammar school district were opened by the board and the bonds ordered sold to William R. Staats Company on a bid of $2,507 premium.

A petition for the formation of the Ravenswood water district was filed by District Attorney Swart. The purpose of such a district, it was explained, is to purchase water from the Spring Valley Water Company to be retailed to residents of Ravenswood. The board filed the petition and set March 7 as the date for public hearing as required by law.

Several applications for soft drink permits, laid over for further consideration since the first of the year, were considered, and four proprietors of such establishments were denied permits to operate in San Mateo county.

A letter was received from the directors of the San Mateo County Chamber of Commerce in which they announced the appointment of Roscoe D. Wyatt as manager of the organization. The apointment was unanimously ratified by the members of the board.

The grand jury, in a letter signed by Foreman Frank H. Thrall, announced to the board that recently it had passed a resolution recommending that the supervisors appoint a committee of free-holders to thoroughly study all phases of the charter form of government for San Mateo county. The letter was ordered filed without comment from any member of the board.

PLAN SUMMER CAMP FOR COUNTY Y. M. C. A.

That the increasing number of boys in the Y. M. C. A. groups throughout San Mateo county may be served by a summer camp, a committee has been requested to locate possible sites and make recommendations for a camp site. The decision of the county committee came from the report by secretaries of the large numbers attending Camp McCoy, the annual outing of San Francisco, located near Strawberry lake. While Camp McCoy will always be the big camp to Y. M. C. A. boys of San Francisco district, and some will attend from San Mateo county, the securing of a closer site would add greatly to the number who could enjoy this part of the Y program, the committee believes.

EXPECT TO COMPLETE FOUR BIG PROJECTS DURING COMING YEAR

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has big projects on its 1927 construction program. New plants will be added to the company's system and present plants will be enlarged. The year 1927 promises to be a busy one for the construction crews; they are now engaged on four big hydro-electric jobs in the Sierras and on many gas and electric construction and maintenance jobs in the various cities served.

In the upper ledges of the Mokelumne river in Amador county, surveyors are making the way for the building of a road to the site of the Salt Springs dam; generating machinery is being set in the Melones power house on the Stanislaus river east of Oakdale.

A crew is busy making enlargements on the Spaulding Drum development in Placer and Nevada counties, and in Shasta county work is progressing on the Pit No. 4 development. The Salt Springs development in Amador county calls for a tremendous program. A great rock-filled dam 200 feet high or more will be thrown across the Mokelumne river. A reservoir of at least 50,000 acre foot capacity and 25 mile water conduit; a 44,000 horse power generating plant at Tiger Creek and a greater output for the electric power house at Jackson, capacity of which will be raised from 26,000 horsepower to 44,000.

This job alone will take four years to complete. Appropriations for the first year on this job will be devoted largely to preliminary work costing $1,500,000. The Melones power house which is to take water from the reservoir built on the Stanislaus by the South San Joaquin and Oakdale Irrigation districts, is scheduled to be completed June 1. Work on this project will continue through the winter and until the new $2,500,000 power project, adding 36,000 horsepower to the company's system, is completed. On the Spaulding Drum development there will be employed hundreds of men in enlarging the two Spaulding power plants, it being the plan to dismantel the present plants to make way for plants of larger capacity. A third and new plant will be built on the rim of Lake Spaulding. The capacity of the Drum power house, near Gold Run, will be increased from 50,000 to 67,000 horsepower. This work is necessary to enable the company to make further use of the additional water made available by raising the Fordyce dam and the water now being developed by the Nevada Irrigation District at Bowman. Material and supplies are now being moved in on the Lake Spaulding jobs over a track recently laid by the Southern Pacific Company from the station at Smart. The Spaulding 1 and 2 plants will be placed in operation this year and a No. 3 plant is scheduled to be ready early in the spring of 1928. Appropriations already made for the Spaulding Drum development aggregate more than $2,000,000. In Shasta county the Pit No. 4 dam, which was started last year, is scheduled to be completed early in 1927. Large expenditures are to be made in all the divisions.

The San Francisco division will spend approximately $500,000 on the new work and as much more for operating and maintenance. In the East Bay division $500,000 is to be applied to the building of new power transmission lines alone. Sacramento division gets $500,000, or a new construction program that includes rebuilding of the Davis substation. San Jose will spend $400,000 on the Newark Coyote tower line and $100,000 or more on a new substation in Monte Vista.

There is a gas program, calling for $4,000,000 for additions and betterments and more than $1,100,000 for maintenance. In the East Bay territory $400,000 will be paid out for mains for new consumers. In every section important additions will be made to meet and anticipate demands for service. In Biggs and Gridley and adjacent territory a thousand new consumers are to be supplied from a new high pressure distribution lines. Sacramento gets half a million dollars to provide for growing gas needs. There are thousands of items in the electrical and gas construction programs and every item is of importance to some group of consumers.

In short, 1927 is to be another memorable year for the Pacific Gas and Electric Company and for the vast territory served by its lines and mains.

LITTLE BLACK INSTRUMENT SAVES MANY LIVES DAILY

The telephone is a great saver of human lives.

Recently, in San Francisco, Mrs. Eta Lenney, 356 Boutwell street, sat telephoning to friends. Her conversation suddenly halted as a great fear seized her. Cold, sinewy fingers gripped her throat. She screamed, dropped the telephone and fainted. The friends, hearing her scream, rushed to her home where they found Mrs. Lenney unconscious on the floor.

The "Dark Strangler" had been at work; but this time his efforts to add another victim to an already long list of crimes was frustrated by the telephone. Knowing only too well that the woman's screams had been transmitted to the party on the other end of the line, the intruder fled.

In Delano, near Bakersfield, M. D. Bowhay, retiring commander of the Merle Reed Post of the American Legion, suffered a heart attack as he removed the receiver from his telephone. When no answer greeted her "Number Please," the operator, knowing that Bowhay had been under physician's care, immediately notified his brother. The latter, with his mother, hurried to Bowhay's home and found him lying unconscious on the floor.

These cases, and others of a similar nature, demonstrate and emphasize to the public the great value of the telephone in times of need.

To have been born in a log cabin has long been considered an asset by politicians. BARGAIN TELEPHONE SERVICE

The third telephone line to cross the continent without relay will soon be put into operation between Seattle and New York. It has cost millions of dollars to build, but it had to be constructed to serve the public. Every line extension brings need for better equipment, more operators, more offices; but every extension multiplies the value of the phone. Widening telephone service is a national necessity, for business can not be conducted today without it. The telephone may cost as much as it did thirty years ago. But it gives a thousand times the service. That makes the American telephone a bargain compared with telephone service in any other country.

Return of Two Prodigal Stars

The past season witnessed the return of the two prodigal athletes, Babe Ruth and Grover Alexander, to much fame and money.

Ruth and Alexander had been the "Peck's Bad Boys" of baseball. The Babe didn't take his baseball very seriously in 1925. Alex didn't take his any different until the season of 1926 was well on the way.

Last winter Babe saw the error of his ways and settled down to business. The result, one of his best years, climaxed by a record-breaking peformance in the world series.

Once more he is baseball's greatest hero.

Alexander, after being cut loose by Chicago because of a laxity in training, so the report said, turned over a new leaf and pitched St. Louis to a pennant and world series.

The bad boys were simply very good.

Modern Football Needs More Than Mere Tonnage

Many are the old football players who resent the basket ball tactics of modern football and who loudly extol the virtues of the old bone-crushing game. They imply that football is not the he-man game it used to be, and point triumphantly to the greater number of injuries which now occur during an encounter, with the explanation that the modern player is soft, writes Charles C. Buell, former Harvard captain in The Sportsman. Isn't it just possible that the very openness of modern football is the cause of these injuries? The old, crashing, head-on tackles of former years and of the present day rarely result in more than a few scars and bruises. The open-field tackle, so common today, requires speed and perfect coordination. Seldom is the runner checked or thrown backward. The old urge to hit hard and low is still very much in evidence, but it must be tempered with accuracy if the runner is to be brought down. The open-field ball carrier comes to the tackler, he comes hard, and it is only natural that minor injuries occasionally develop.

"Glorified basket ball" is the term often used by the old "die hards," when referring to modern football. Let them play or teach others to play it. Experience is a great teacher and they will find that it takes both skill and nerve to throw a forward pass in the face of a fierce incharging line. They will discover that it requires a deftness of hand, quickness of eye, and rare courage to jump for a pass and catch it when there is a determined defensive back at one's shoulder. They will find that modern offensive and defensive line play require speed, agility, and football intuition in addition to mere tonnage.

Two Practical Plans for Making a Hockey Stick

If you need an ice hockey stick, there are two ways to make it. The first is to bend the wood into shape, the other is to select a piece of wood that is already bent.

Making the sharp bend is not easy with the equipment of the average home workshop, but you can have this done at a local mill, where they have facilities for bending wood, and making it stay bent. The rest of the shaping and finishing will be no trick at all.

The other method: A tree branch is selected, elm preferred, that has the correct bend to it; this is first roughly hewed to shape with an ax, then finished to the form with spoke-shave or draw-knife, plane, file and sandpaper. After sanding smooth, a coat of shellac should be applied.—The American Boy Magazine.

Swedish Star Arrives

Edvin Wide, the Swedish running star, and the man who beat Paavo Nurmi, is now training here for coming meets. Wide runs in the same manner as Nurmi, vertically, with plenty of wide arm action to allow proper breathing. He expects to beat quite a few of the marks set up by Nurmi in this country.

Gained 47 Pounds in Football Game

In a game played on a muddy field, Frank Pauly, giant guard of the Washington and Jefferson eleven, went in weighing 256 pounds. Withdrawn after the third period and coated from head to foot with mud, he stepped on the scale in the dressing room and weighed 303 pounds.

Sande Is Again Leading Jockey

Earle Sande, America's noted jockey, captured 22 stakes races last year ranging from a $3,000 claiming race to the rich Riggs Memorial handicap, worth $22,450 and the Fairmount derby, valued at $24,725, netting his employer $240,275.

Alfred Johnson, who rides for Bardley Idle Hour stables, brought his master $203,610 for the year, although not winning half the stake races that Sande did.

Sande led Crusader to the tape first in the Cincinnati derby, and "out-smarted" Eric Blind to put Haste in front of Baggenbaggage, a one to two favorite in the Fairmouth derby. Astride Haste, he also captured the Withers stakes.

GETTING START IN BASKET BALL

Getting Into Action Quick Is Best Plan.

There isn't a "best" way to start on the basket ball floor. Any technique that gets you into action fast is the one to use. Dodging, pivoting, turning, are the things you'll need to work on, writes Mitchell V. Charnley in the American Boy Magazine.

Many fellows find the proper execution of a pivot difficult. It is not so hard, really. What it requires is a firm, well-balanced stance, a good grip on the floor with the shoes, a rapid whirl on one foot that gives you a new facing. There are a dozen kinds of pivots. The legal block pivot is the one in which you throw your hips into the hip of an attacker just as you whirl. A three-quarter pivot takes you almost all the way around and lets you pass in the direction you originally faced. Circumstances govern the kind of pivot you'll need, and you can pretty well suit your footwork to the exact case. But practice on footwork.

There are two kinds of stops, one from a regular running stride which consists of planting the forward foot and throwing the body back—it may be combined readily with a pivot or turn—and another which is effected by a short forward jump bringing both feet down flat, body bent back.

A "set-up" which gives all-round footwork practice comes in well in training periods. Here is a good one: Put a guard at the foul line and advance an offensive man dribbling at the basket. When this man reaches the guard he may stop, pivot, or fake a pivot and pass to a man trailing him. Another "set-up" has a guard to cover a man dribbling to the side line; there the man may either execute a pivot or pass to a trailer.

Every branch of offense depends on every other branch, and a player can't be at his best in shooting if he's below his best in passing, or footwork, or dribbling. That's why personal per cent has to be developed all-round—why you won't be of most offensive value to your team unless your own personal per cent in each branch is up just about as high as you can possibly bring it.

So work on all. But don't think that, because you've developed offensive ability, you're necessarily all you'll need to be.

Last year Coach Louis G. Wilke, down in Bartlesville, Okla., had nothing but small men for his high school team. Pretty good small men, some of them—fighting and hard-working. But Billy Julian and Buddy Foster, the two first string forwards, had serious defensive weaknesses, and probably, if Coach Wilke had had capable substitutes at the start of the season, he'd not have used Julian and Foster.

The difficulty with these two men was that they had a habit of rushing their opponents on defense. When they saw a man on the other side charging their way with the ball, they lunged out toward him at a terrific rate—and frequently saw the opponent dribble or dodge past safely.

Dunne, Harvard Coach

Here is a photograph of R. J. "Duke" Dunne, the former Michigan captain who has been an assistant to Glenn Thistlewaite at Northwestern university the past four years, and who has signed an agreement to become head line coach at Harvard. Harvard tried to secure Dunne's services last year.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

The thriving business activities of Glendora during the year 1926 have been due largely to the picturesque location and the unusual natural advantages of the city, which have drawn men of great wealth to the community. Approximately $765,500 was paid in cash during the year for 188 acres of choice foothill citrus groves located within one and a half miles of the business center of the town. Half of this acreage brought $5000 per acre. Much of the property was purchased by eastern business men who recognized the investment possibilities in a California orange grove as well as an ideal site for a winter home. There was also unusual activity in the sale of town lots and outlying real estate.

Nearly $5,000,000 in tax money will be due the state government, it was indicated in records of the state controller recently, if the electric railway tax decision rendered by Superior Judge Peter J. Shields of Sacramento county last week is not reversed in expected appeals to the Supreme Court. In a case involving electric lines of the Southern Pacific Railroad Judge Shields held that all railroad lines, steam or electric, should be taxed uniformly at 7 per cent of gross receipts. Applying this ruling to all California electric lines which have been paying at 5¼ per cent, records show that state would receive $4,926,000 in back taxes accruing since 1921 when the King bill tax increase became effective.

Declaring that his department is better equipped financially for fire prevention and suppression work than ever before in the state's history, State Forester M. B. Pratt began arrangements for a greatly strengthened state forest ranger organization and for co-operative fire fighting agreements with the various county governments looking toward the 1927 season of hazard in the timber regions. Under Governor Young's budget program, Pratt said, the state will have $106,450 a year for fire fighting and prevention, including approximately $29,970 from the Federal government and $10,000 to be collected from private timber owners under the compulsory patrol law.

It may be common knowledge in some quarters throughout California that hip flask salesmen frequently deal in "pint" containers decidedly undersize, but it remained for the state government to recognize that fact officially. Charles F. Hayden, chief of the state division of weights and measures, announced that during the last year his deputies confiscated several thousand undersized bottles shaped exactly like those used to contain strong drink in the pre-Volstead days. Lying scales, cheating measures and undersized "pint" bottles confiscated during 1926 had a value estimated by Hayden at over $35,000.

The University of California may acquire 35 acres of the 100-acre site of the California School of the Deaf in Berkeley, if plans now under way are successful. As a possible site for dormitories or experimental gardens, the northern 35 acres of the site, may be purchased by the university as the result of the introduction of a bill authorizing the sale of the land in the legislature by Assemblyman Harrison C. Kelsey of Berkeley. The school is to be moved to a new site in Alameda county, and, under the bill, the land will then be put up for sale.

More than 7,000 gallons of wine were dumped recently at the Carl & Arata Winery at Fulton by Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue William Shackelton. The vintage was destroyed at the request of the winery owners who had grown weary of paying taxes and not being able to find a market. In the big wineries of Sonoma county there are still several million gallons of wine, much of it made years ago. This is being kept for shipment on government permit for sacramental and medicinal purposes.

Perhaps unearthing a mystery of years old, workmen excavating on a road right of way near Lexington, in the Santa Cruz mountains, dug up a human skeleton about two feet under the surface of the ground. There was no vestige of cloth or metal to suggest that the body had been clothed when buried. Deputy Coroner Williams declared that the bones probably had been there a decade, and that they probably were those of an adult.

The Nevada Press Association, through Harold P. Hale, president, has invited the California Press Association to hold its convention in Reno next July. The invitation was forwarded to ex-Governor Friend W. Richardson, president of the California organization. A chapel building, devoted to the devotional services and musical features of the University of Redlands, classic in its exterior and dignified in interior treatment, is being built at the University of Redlands. The chapel will be 100x168 feet. The main part will seat 1,500, and there will be a choir loft that will seat 200. The building costing $180,000, an organ costing $36,000 and the furnishings will bring the total expenditures to $240,000.

Petaluma produced about 10 per cent of the country's egg output in 1926, according to the report of President S. S. Knight to the Petaluma Poultry Keepers' Association. "The world's egg basket," by producing about 34,000,000 dozens of eggs, made up 40 per cent of California's output of approximately 85,000,000 dozens. According to the president's report, Petaluma ranchers received on an average 5 cents less per dozen for their eggs in 1926 than in 1925.

Architects are completing plans for a group or high school buildings for the Pittsburg High School district, at Pittsburg, Contra Costa county. There will be a two-story class C academic building to contain twenty classrooms and a temporary auditorium. There will also be a one-story frame and brick veneer gymnasium and a one-story shop building of the same construction. The cost of the improvements will be about $180,000 financed by bonds voted by the electors.

The Days of '49, celebrated by Sacramento in May 1922, will be revived in 1929 if the members of the board of directors of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce vote favorably on a request now before them. The possibility of holding a Days of '49 celebration in Sacramento has been submitted to the directorate by Arthur S. Dudley, secretary-manager of the chamber, and some definite decision is expected at their next meeting. The matter came up recently, but was laid over for further consideration.

It is announced that the Southern California Edison company plans to spend $223,000 in 1927 for electrical extensions and reinforcements in the Lancaster district, which includes Palmdale, Mojave and Little Rock. The money will be used largely for reinforcement requirements at the Del Sur substation, the enlargement of main feeder lines and extensions.

Tanlac Relieves Many Ills

Health Ravaged by Bad Heart, Nervousness and Sour Stomach, Mrs. McLean Manages to Avert Disaster. Health and Strength Are Restored. Gains 38 Pounds.

"Take Tanlac—that is my advice to everybody, and it is from one who has tried it," says Mrs. Elizabeth McLean, 4171 Lincoln Ave., Oakland, Cal.

"Four or five years ago I first used it, and ever since then have depended on it. Then I was afflicted generally—had to build up or give up entirely. My stomach was in an awful state, my heart bothered me and I could not eat. I was so weak and nervous, I kept losing weight and strength, my health seemed wrecked, nothing helped me.

"But six or eight bottles of Tanlac put me back in splendid condition. My stomach troubles gave way; I gained perfect digestion and with it an appetite hard to satisfy. I increased in weight from 120 to 158 pounds. Tanlac is my formula for good health. It is and always will be the best."

Tanlac made of roots, barks and herbs, helps build up scrawny, weak bodies, drive out causes of suffering and give the body good health.

MORE WAR FIGURES

Many pages of statistics bearing on losses incurred during the World war have been compiled, and the figures in some cases are so large as to baffle the imagination.

Secretary O. K. Davis of the Foreign Trade Council recently gave out an estimate of the losses in exports suffered by the nations of the world as a result of the war. We can not possibly visualize such a stupendous sum — $210,000,000,000. Two hundred and ten billion dollars!

This means that the amount of goods and products of various kinds that might have been produced, but were not produced on account of the war, nearly equalled the entire wealth of Western Europe. It is further stated that not until 1925 did the world again reach the production which had been attained in 1913.

It is predicted that thirty years more must elapse before the economic disturbances caused by that war shall be fully adjusted.

That is, we may get back to normalcy in thirty years, provided we do not have another great war in the meantime.

FIRE LOSS RECORD

Bend, Oregon, in a great timber country, had fire losses of only about 40 cents per capita last year. New York City had $27,951,055 total, or almost $7 per capita. Bend cut her nationally famous 1925 record by more than 50 per cent, as a result of fire prevention measures. New York increased her losses by $2,000,000.

Some fire losses seem unavoidable. But these are so few as to be almost negligible. Fires take about 21,0000 American lives each year; and enough property loss to pay for a revolutionary war.

The wanton fire-builder is potentially a murderer.

Time is the jokesmith's greatest enemy. Wheezes about the mother-in-law, the post office pen and the income tax blank are almost played out.

LABOR FIGHTS REDS

Considerable discussion ragarding whether Bolshevism really menaces America has been heard on account of the fears expressed by the State Department recently in connection with its Mexican policy.

Whatever may be the activities of communists in this country, it is quite evident that they have made little if any headway among American labor organizations, which are perhaps today more conservative in policy than ever before.

Only a few days ago, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, declared that his great organization is taking a more active part in combatting communistic influences than is American capital.

"Many of our trade unions, especially in the eastern industrial centers, are having to cope with communistic propaganda," said Mr. Green, "but we move to combat this wherever and whenever it shows up."

There are good reasons for this attitude. One of them is that laboring men of America are well paid, and capable working men are able to have many of the luxuries of life, as well as the necessities, with a margin left in many instances for savings or investments. Many of them own stock in the companies for which they work, and the line between capital and labor is thus being radually obliterated.

Where such conditions prevail, Red propaganda falls upon deaf ears, and the seeds of class hatred perish in barren soil.

OUR IMPENDING DOOM

In a recent issue of the Nashville Banner we read a news article leading off with this grim paragraph:

"The impending doom of the world in this generation will be stressed as an appeal for a more spiritual life when one hundred clergymen and other gospel workers from the South assemble in Nashville."

No one can find fault with an appeal for "a more spiritual life," but to base such an appeal on the impending end of the world is an insult to the intelligence of any enlightened person.

Possibly, even probably, the end of the world may come some day, as we are taught all things must end. There is ample evidence that suns and planets and statellites have had their beginnings, their changes and their endings. But to predict that our solar system, which has been working with comparative regularity for countless ages, is to end "in this generation," is a claim that will find little belief among the masses.

NOT A SPENDTHRIFT NATION

During 1926, American savings banks gained almost 3,000,000 depositors, and $1,562,140,000 deposits. There are now 46,782,000 depositors, with $24,696,192,000 deposits.

New England has the largest percentage of depositors, with the highest per capita deposits, almost $500 per depositor. In contrast, New Mexico has but $19 per inhabitant, and Texas only $31.

Some of this apparent difference in saving is merely a difference in investment habits, and does not represent actual conditions of prosperity. But everywhere the savings bank habit grows. The vast volume of such funds shows that the country is amazingly prosperous, and that it has formed the savings habit and found it good.

A microphone might tempt the Sphinx to talk.

VETERANS' LAST CHANCE

It is regrettable that veterans of the World war have not more generally availed themselves of the very liberal terms of the act by which they were provided with war risk insurance at a low rate.

In the beginning they were made eligible for term insurance at rates much lower than could have been secured from private agencies. It was provided by the law that these temporary policies must be converted into one of several standard forms offered after five years, but the time for such conversions was afterward extended until July 2, 1927. On that date all privileges under the law will cease unless veterans have converted their insurance.

Very liberal terms for reinstatement of lapsed policies are still in effect and are open to all veterans, provided they take advantage of them immediately. Full information may be obtained from the Veterans' Bureau, Washington, D. C., or from local officers of any American Legion Post.

This is the last chance to secure the benefits to which veterans are entitled under the laws establishing government life insurance, and it is strongly urged that those who have not already done so should take steps to avail themselves of these benefits without delay.

COOL HEAD SAVED LIFE

Presence of mind, a cool head and a knowledge of what to do in an emergency often avert disaster, as was illustrated by the display of these qualities by the wife of a British official in India a few days ago.

Seated at dinner with her family and several guests, she felt a snake coil about her ankle. Instead of shrieking with terror and attempting to flee, she quietly told those seated at the table not to move, and directed a servant to place a bowl of milk on the floor.

Presently a large cobra glided gracefully from under the table and approached the milk, which is said to be for this reptile an irresistible bait, and it was then killed by one of the men present.

The cobra is one of the deadliest snakes in the world, and while it does not attack people unless irritated, it is responsible for about 10,000 deaths each year in India alone. No antidote for cobra poison is known, and death usually results in a few minutes after the victim is bitten.

The lady in question knew the habits of the cobra and had the self-control to do just what was necessary to save herself from certain death. Whether she would have exhibited the same composure had the intruder been a mouse, is another question.

WORLD'S EGG RECORD

So far as official records go, a White Leghorn hen entered in an egg-laying contest at Agassiz, British Columbia, is the champion of the world, having laid 351 eggs in a year, according to the Country Gentleman.

The prize pen of ten hens to which the champion belonged laid 2,946 eggs during the year, an average of 294.5 each, which is also believed to be a record for a pen of ten birds.

This remarkable output is convincing evidence that it pays to raise pure-bred fowls and give them the very best of care. The pen in question was entered by the poultry division of the University of British Columbia, which had bred the birds from a long line of heavy laying ancestors, and had naturally given them careful attention with respect to feeding, housing and sanitation.

All these points must be given close attention if the best results are to be attained, for no matter how well bred hens may be, they will not make high records without a suitable environment and watchful care.

PRESS AIDS HEALTH

In the opinion of Dr. Bloodgood, eminent cancer specialist of Johns Hopkins University, the newspapers of the country are performing a splendid public service through the publication of health information.

He declares that due to the spread of sound information concerning the teeth, excessive use of stimulants and tobacco, 70 per cent of the patients threatened with cancer now seek medical aid in time to save themselves from actual infection. Before the newspapers aided in disseminating health information, less than 3 per cent sought medical aid in time.

The old idea that a doctor should not give out information to the press, because of an ancient code of ethics, was criticised by Dr. Bloodgood, who believes that the public should be told in plan language whatever of benefit the medical man has to tell. Stressing the importance of attention to the teeth, the doctor said:

"Let the press continue its work. Let it advise every man and woman over 40 to have their teeth X-rayed twice a year. Bad teeth are the most common cause of breakdown."

Through preventive measures the span of human life has been materially lengthened during the past few years, and it is gratifying to newspaper men to have the commendation of such a high authority for their part in bringing about this important result.

If a married couple live happily together it isn't news—otherwise newspapers would have to be larger.

Nowadays one road to successful authorship is through villifying the dead.

Men classed as "prominent" owe a lot to the stupidity of their fellows.

Colma News Notes

Margaret Grady spent Wednesday of this week at the Varni home in San Francisco.

Miss Atkinson, teacher of the Fourth grade at Crocker school, has been ill this week.

The La Fiesta Social Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. John Hume next Friday evening.

Don't forget the Colma Volunteer Firemen's dance, which is to take place at Colombo Hall, Saturday evening, February 19.

Marion Millett and Martha Worst attended a tea Friday afternoon at the Oak Tree Inn, San Mateo, given by the Associated Women Students of San Mateo Junior College.

Market Street car service on the No. 40 line has been restored after two weeks of constant and frantic work on the part of the wrecking crew. The junction at South San Francisco has also been repaired.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the dance scheduled for February 19, by the Colma Volunteer Fire Department. Extensive preparations are being made, and it is expected this will be the most successful dance of the season.

Mrs. B. W. Haubrich is now home again, after being in St. Luke's hospital for a few weeks. Her condition is improving, which is good news to her many friends.

Remember the big mass meeting to be held Monday, February 14, in Jefferson Hall. It is the most important event in Colma since the organization of the fire department.

Daly City was represented at the annual past officers' meeting of the Elks of San Mateo on Wednesday evening of the first week of February. Among the candidates initiated was Mr. Varni, of Colma.

Don't forget the whist to be given for the benefit of Holy Angels' church, February 24, in Holy Angels' Hall, San Pedro avenue, Colma. Mrs. M. Grady, chairman of this whist, is working hard for its success. Come and bring all of your friends.

Last Wednesday evening a whist party and dance was held at the Daly City Auditorium by the drill team of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West. It was a huge success both financially and socially. Excellent music was furnished by the Nite Owls.

The Colma Hardware Store was opened last week in the Arata building, handling general hardware and supplies. Mr. G. Calcagno, the proprietor of this new business establishment, believes Colma is the best place on the peninsula for such a business as he is conducting, hence his decision to locate in Colma.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Grady entertained a number of their friends at their home on San Pedro avenue, last Thursday evening. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Coyne, Margaret Varni, Erminia Biggio, Margaret Grady, Harold Varni, Walter Riccomi and Al Kennedy.

The committee engaged in making the necessary preparations for the dance to be given by the Colma Volunteer Fire Department on Saturday evening, February 19, at Colombo Hall, are doing everything possible to prepare for one of the largest crowds that ever attended a dance in Colma, and it is hoped they will not be disappointed in the attendance. It is your duty to be present, and you will no doubt get a great deal of pleasure by being present, as there will be the best music obtainable, and you will see all your friends there.

On Friday evening, February 18, Crocker Chapter, Order of DeMolay, will give a whist party in the Masonic Hall. Following the game there will be dancing and refreshments. It is expected this will be a most enjoyable party and well worth your patronage.

Of course you are figuring on attending the dance to be given by the Colma Volunteer Fire Department on Saturday evening, February 19. It is the duty of every resident of Colma to purchase a ticket to this dance, and be present to enjoy the evening with our fire boys. Excellent music will be provided, and you are guaranteed the time of your life.

Douglas Fairbank's greatest picture, "The Black Pirate," will be shown at the State Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 17, 18 and 19. This great picture was shown down town at prices ranging from 50 cents to $2.50. Residents of this section now have the opportunity of seeing it at popular prices.

A new dance floor is being installed at the Lone Pine Inn, at Pescadero, which has recently been taken over by N. O. Maybell. On Saturday evening, February 19, a dance will be given at the Lone Pine Inn, to which the public is invited. Music will be furnished by the Chesterfield orchestra, one of the best known orchestras on the coastside.

Don't forget the Colma Volunteer Fire Department dance Saturday night, February 19, at Colombo Hall. The department is not supported by taxes and raises money in this way. Only by the attendance of you and your friends can they put over this years' program big and render you bigger and beter fire service than ever. They donate their time, labor and money week after week. Surely you can donate this one night. Help them! They help you!

John D. Barry, in his next lecture on "Personalities, Books, Plays and Events in the News," at the Fairmont Hotel, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, will discuss these subjects: "The Prince of Wales as Revealed by an Authorized Biographer," "What Lies Behind the Conflicts in China," "Mussolini and the New Tyranny," "Public Support for Deserving Ex-Presidents," and "Significant Changes in Marriage."

Isabella Silicani, of Colma, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Silicani, of Byron street, was married last Saturday evening to Mr. William Massano, of San Francisco, at St. Peter's and St. Paul's church, San Francisco. The bride was dressed in white. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lagomarsino attended the bride. On account of the illness of her parents, they were unable to attend the wedding ceremony. Mr. Massano is past secretary of the Colma Athletic Club. They left Sunday for a trip of two weeks to Los Angeles. On their return they will take up their residence in the Mission district.

A LETTER OF APPRECIATION

The following letter was received by the Girls' Club of Colma from the U. S. Veterans' hospital at Palo Alto:

Miss Romilda Grondora, Treasurer Girls' Club of Colma, California.

Dear Miss Grondora:

Through the kindness of Miss Chesebrough, we have your check for $20, to be used by the library as we see fit for the entertainment of the patients. Magazines are so entertaining, especially those with illustrations, that we are going to subscribe for all that the money will buy. I only wish it were your privilege to see what pleasure will be given by them.

Thanking you and your club for this personal interest in the patients, I am,

Very truly yours,
F. C. SMITH,
Medical Officer.

This donation has been an annual custom of the Girls' Club for a number of years.

ANOTHER COSOLIDATION

The South San Francisco Journal was purchased last week by George F. Morell from the Hoyle Printing Company. The Journal has been merged with the Enterprise, South San Francisco's pioneer newspaper, owned by the Concord Publishing Company, in which Morell has an interest. As a result of the merger, the Journal goes out of business, the circulation of that paper being combined with that of the Enterprise. It is understood the plant of the Hoyle Printing Company, publishers of the Journal will be dismantled and sold.

The Journal was started as the South San Francisco News, a weekly paper, in September, 1923, by Lawrence Cherry and H. A. Cavassa. In February, 1925, it was made a tabloid sized daily, which continued until June, 1925, when it was purchased by the Hoyle Printing Company and changed into a weekly paper under the name South San Francisco Journal. The Enetrprise was founded in 1895, and has been in continuous publication in South San Francisco ever since.

So live that when your summons comes you will have a good alibi.

MASS MEETING TO BE HELD MONDAY NIGHT

Next Monday night, February 14, a mass meeting will be held in Jefferson Hall, at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing the incorporation of Colma, or consolidation with Daly City.

Property owners, both resident and non-resident, are asking for sewers, water and street work. The majority of the property owners seem to favor the consolidation plan, which is the most practical and economical. The incorporation of Colma by itself might be more desirable, but the cost would be a great deal more, and more than likely prohibitive.

That Colma is on the road to improvement is evidenced by the interest its citizens are taking in the preliminary work of consolidation or incorporation. Not only Colma people are interested, but all San Mateo county. It is surprising to note the interest outsiders are showing. San Francisco people are remarking the natural advantages which Colma has, and wondering that we have done little if anything to further these natural advantages, until now.

Every resident of Colma should be present at this meeting next Monday night, and express his views. Something must be done to better conditions in Colma.

It is up to you to get busy and see that Colma is made a place of which every resident can be proud, and to which they may invite the investment of capital, and the coming to this community of desirable citizens.

The occasional pleasant days with which we have been favored are greatly appreciated. The only trouble is they do not come often enough.

Those 103 Catalina Channel swimmers must have caused an axle grease famine on the west coast.

SYNOPSIS OF INSTRUCTION

Following is Synopsis of Instruction No. 5, by Father James Donohoe, to the children of St. Maximus church preparing for confirmation:

"It does not matter much whether you are rich or poor, strong or sick, in this world; it lasts only a very short time.

"If you want to go to heaven, you must work hard, and fight hard against your bad inclinations. 'The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent bear it away.' (Matt. xi. 12.)

"You must expect to suffer a great deal, too, if you are to go to heaven: like our Lord. 'Through many tribulations we must enter into the kingdom of God.' (Acts xiv. 21.)

"One minute in heaven will make you forget all the troubles of this life. Whatever you may have to suffer here, heaven is worth it all.

"The most important thing you have to do in this world is to make yourself fit for heaven. Do not be negligent about it; for 'he who soweth sparingly shall also reap sparingly.' (2 Cor. ix. 6.)

"A man is a fool if he risks eternal misery for the sake of a few minutes, or a few years (it is all the same), of pride or dishonesty, pleasure or sin. It is not worth it. He is like the savage who found a diamond worth thousands of dollars and sold it to a white man for a bright new shilling.

"The devil persuades sinners that sin is pleasant and useful, and that there is not much harm or danger in it. He mocks at them when they have listened to him and lost their souls! His cleverest trick is to make them think there is no such place as hell until they find themselves in it."

Jack London's story of love and adventure, "The Sea Wolf," will be presented at the State Theatre next Monday and Tuesday, February 14 and 15. In addition there will be "A Night in Hawaii," featuring the Hula-Hula contest, and "Fighting Hearts" No. 6.

First thing we know the administration will accuse him of being a Borah from within.

SCHOOL DAYS

Mother's Cook Book

There is a general agreement, except perhaps on the part of a few wayward ascetics, not only that health is a blessing; but that to the want of it may safely be ascribed no inconsiderable part of our present ethical and social problems.—James Harvey Robinson.

GOOD THINGS WE ENJOY

TO THE few minced pieces of left-over chicken add a little veal with a bone or two, stew and when well cooked drop in the following dumplings:

Dumplings.

Take one cupful of fresh butter milk, sift one cupful of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, add one beaten egg, some salt, mix well and drop from a teaspoon into the stew. Cook tightly covered for eight minutes, then serve at once.

Blackstone Dressing.

Mix four tablespoonfuls each of mayonnaise dressing and whipped cream, two tablespoonfuls of chili sauce, two of tomato catsup and two of vinegar. Roquefort cheese may be added if desired.

Marshmallow Salad.

Cut three slices of pineapple in dice, add a dozen quartered marshmallows, one-half cupful of chopped nuts, a cupful of seeded white grapes, the pulp of two oranges. Serve when well mixed with mayonnaise, on lettuce.

Spanish Pepper Salad.

Dissolve half a box of gelatin in half a cupful of cold water, add one-half cupful of vinegar, one-half cupful of sugar, the juice of a lemon and a tablespoonful of salt, with a cupful of boiling water. Mix six canned pimentos with two cupfuls of finely cut celery, one cupful of cut pecan meats. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

Friendship Village Muffins.

Beat two eggs, add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, two of shortening and one cupful of milk with flour to make a thin batter; add one teaspoonful of baking powder and beat well. Bake in muffin pans.

Western Salad.

Chop four hard-cooked eggs, four tablespoonfuls of onion also chopped, four tablespoonfuls of watermelon pickle and cheese chopped. Save out the yolks of two eggs and put through a ricer to garnish the top.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

THE OPENING PRELUDE

OUR fingers are on the keys of a great organ, whose voice as yet is unknown to any other ears but our own.

A strange fear takes hold of us as we are about to play the introductory prelude, for which the world has been waiting since we were children, trudging to and from school with our little packs of books.

We are our own composers, searching among the crannies of our brain for a suitable theme.

We cannot play from the scores written by others, for that is prohibited by the powers that be—the powers which set us down here on this planet, and over which we have no control.

We must use our own notes, create our own phrases, construct our own periods and weave our own harmonies.

We must exhibit in playing them our touch, our feeling, our force, the fine art of phrasing and all those subtle qualities for which the world has been so long waiting to hear and see and feel.

We press the keys. As we do so, the thought comes to us that our boyhood or girlhood has ceased.

The thought for a moment overwhelms us, but we gather strength and assurance from the swelling music and play on until the prelude dies away.

Then we step down from our stool into the noisier, sterner activities of life, where we shall make sweet harmonies or jarring discords till the end of our day.

It is the tuning point in our career, a change, perchance in the world's thoughts and our own.

We are to play our part now like masters.

We are to make music that shall be an inspiration to those other school boys and girls who have taken our places.

From this day we are to be their torch-bearers.

Our responsibilities weigh heavily upon our shoulders.

Every false note we touch they will hear. They are straining their ears and listening to us just as we listened to others in the days not yet so far away.

They are watching our every movement while we are shaping their lives, giving them vision of the future, stirring their love or hate, imparting courage or cowardice, and making them fit to take their places at the great organ and acquit themselves with greater credit than did their predecessors.

CAUTION AND COWARDS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHO are the cowards? No, not those
Who test the bridge before they cross,
Who ask the traveler who knows,
Consult the skies when billows toss,
And watch the path they have to tread
For dangers that may lie ahead.

Who are the cowards? Fools who fear
The idle words of other fools—
Who warning signals will not hear,
Nor look for signs, nor seek for rules,
For fear some other fool may call
Precaution weakness after all.

Who are the cowards? They who race
To cross the railroad, when to pause
May bring a sneer to someone's face,
A face inclined to sneer at laws
And judgment and the common sense
Of wisdom and experience.

Who are the cowards? Fools rush in,
You know, where angels fear to tread—
Yes, fearing censure, deeply sin
And leave their monuments of dead
To prove that cowards men may be
Who think themselves all bravery.

These are the cowards. But the brave
Are those who fear not folly's sneer.
They are the ones who lives will save
And live their own with conscience clear.
Oh, this we need in every trade:
Men brave enough to be afraid.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

HUSBANDS AND FIRES

IF A woman has good success in building fires she will get a good husband; if poor success she will get a lazy one.

This superstition is prevalent in Canada and some of the Western states and is found, also, in some parts of New England. It is a modern form of the age-old superstition with regard to the sacrificial fire. If the fire refused to burn up brightly upon the altar it was supposed to be a sign that the sacrifice was not acceptable to the gods, whereas a bright and lively flame was taken as an omen of divine approval. The Greeks were very sensitive about the burning of their sacrificial fires and if one seemed to be reluctant to burn they resorted to the expedient of the modern domestic and poured oil upon it, thereby forcing destiny as it were. Thus we get the idea of good luck and bad luck as told by the action of the fire.

It is certainly bad luck for a woman to have a lazy husband. But the restriction of the modern superstition to women with regard to marriage comes through the application of the idea to the torch of Hymen, the Greek god of marriage who was represented as a taller and more serious youth than Eros, the god of love, but like Eros carrying a flaming torch. In the Greek marriage processions lighted torches in imitation of the torch of Hymen were carried by the bride's mother and it was accounted a presage of bad luck to have one of them refuse to burn readily or go out.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"HULLABALOO"

THIS term, meaning a great deal of noise, a sort of bedlam of sound created usually by many voices, is a good example of the wealth of color and history that is concealed in some of our commonest words.

"Hullabaloo" comes to us from the Coranach, the funeral dirge formerly in use among the Irish and Scottish Celts. This consisted of several verses detailing the life of the deceased and proclaiming in loud and mournful accents the loss of those left behind.

The cries were called by the Irish "Hulagahue," and "hululu," and it is from the latter that we have the still popular "hullabaloo."

The Coranach has long ago fallen into disuse. It was superseded until the latter half of the Eighteenth century, when this also began to wane, by the bagpipe funeral lament of the Highlanders. In Scotch literature, however, and in references to Scotland in English literature we find many references to the older custom of the Coranach, which gave us the word "hullabaloo."

Town Behind the Times

Within 14 miles of London, the town of Downe is unique in that it has no electricity, no gas, no sewage system, no motion pictures and no doctor. It has a seven-hundred-year-old church, however, of which it is extremely proud. The houses are lighted with oil lamps and the church with candles. Only two houses have been built since 1914.

Simplicity Marks New Evening Duds

Line, Beauty of Color Now Being Emphasized in Formal Attire.

A tendency toward simplicity in the mode for evening, first apparent last fall, has grown still more pronounced in the evening models being exhibited for the season at the Riviera and at Palm Beach, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. These newest designs depend almost wholly on charm of line and beauty of coloring rather than on applied intense ornamentation, thereby achieving an effect of unsophisticated youthfulness for which the extremely elaborate gown strives in vain.

Worth compromises in one instance with this new order to the extent of confining the bead embroidery on the gown to a single panel down the back. Otherwise the frock is simplicity itself, made in black of a soft crepe satin, with the front of the waist demurely straight, a modestly high round neck line and side fullness in the skirt resulting from a circular cut. The traditional Worth elegance is reserved for the back of its low, V-cut back and its panel hung with row after row of black bead fringe. The gown bears its own permanent shoulder decoration in the form of embroidered flowers done in paillettes in various tones of peacock blue.

Simplicity composed of many intricacies is the boasted forte of Vionnet and one sees in her collection many charming examples of the complicatedly simple evening gown. A favorite type is made of georgette, perfectly plain but flowing in line, the exquisite fit effected by the use of a deep V-shaped gore inserted down one side of the waist and even deeper V inserted on the opposite side of the skirt. This diagonal line is repeated by cutting the top of the bodice to cross only one shoulder, the other side of the bodice being held by a strap.

Simplicity, Plus Correctness In Paulette Chiffon.

These unusual necklines are very popular this season. Chanel achieves a very interesting one on a gown of black Chantilly lace, built over a pink foundation. A narrow strip of the lace, applied as a little bertha across the back of the gown, is left loose from the shoulder seam to be thrown across the front of the neck as a tiny scarf. Otherwise the gown is very simple with its two flounces on the skirt and its low but distinctly up-in-front waistline.

Furs Now in Limelight for Women's Sports Wear

Where preference only is to be considered one may select pony, stencilled sea lion, gazelle, antelope, muskrat, raccoon, leopard or otter if a coat is wanted principally for sports use, because these furs belong quite definitely in the category of stylish sports furs. Reversible coats—one side a smooth, soft cloth, the other one of flat sports fur—are also favored for the new season.

For more general wear a choice can be from among such furs as Mendoza beaver, Hollander Hudson seal, squirrel, krimmer, caracul, American broadtail and mole.

Use Judgment in Colors When Adding New Things

So many pretty girls and women seem to have not the faintest notion of smartness in the matter of color. They've bought a brown coat, a black hat, a blue dress! and wear them all at once. Consider what you have on hand before adding what you need to get. Even the cleverest of us ought to sit down with a pad and pencil before taking the simplest shopping expedition. To be well dressed is not, in the main, a matter of income; it is rather a matter of brains.

Two-Piece Sports Dress Is Made of Silk Crepe

This charming two-piece sports dress of silk crepe should appeal to many women. It is smart and plain and dignified.

One-Piece Frock Again Winning Milady's Favor

One-piece frocks are again coming into favor. With the new one-piece dress return smart little jackets of matching material of velvet.

The modern one-piece dress is not, however, the straight-lined affair worn a few seasons ago. It is made with a suggestion of the low-placed waistline and usually has a skirt decorated with inverted plaits, tucks, tiers, aprons or godets. Most often the fullness appears at the front of the skirt only since the back of the frock must appear slender-fitting and seem to be drawn rather snugly over the hips. Wide, tight hipbands are well thought of by the smart modistes who are featuring the one-piece frocks in preference to simple jumper models.

As to sleeves, they continue long! Set into narrow armholes the newer models appear to gradually gain fullness until they reach the wrists where they gather into narrow wristbands. Collars may be V-shaped, square in front and rounded at the rear, high, or of the girlish turn-down type.

Sleeveless velvet jackets, embroidered in colors or plain are being worn over one-piece dresses in the home these chilly days.

What to Wear to Add That Individual Touch

What can a woman wear to add that smart "finishing touch?" What can she do that will make her individual—add a something that will give her the long-for individual stamp?

Gowns, hosiery, slippers, even jewelry all conform to a certain ever-changing style, but that "finishing touch" is a matter each woman must decide for herself. The smart woman gets it and rejoices, the other woman just misses it.

Look in the glass and decide for yourself. No one can help you. It must be your own original thought that will add the thing you need. Try arranging a scarf at your throat some new way. Take beads and twist them in some odd fashion. Get a piece of chiffon and make a bow of it for your shoulder, your hip or even the edge of your skirt.

Give yourself an individual air. Do all that fashion demands and then add your own personal touch and you will be smart!

Formal Fabrics Used in Informal Models

Informal frocks fashioned of formal fabrics is a description that applies to many of the smartest of the new models. Such informal frocks mark the fashion trend of using certain materials, heretofore reserved for occasions of ceremony, for costumes that in line duplicate rather casual sports modes.

The great success achieved by the striped sports jumper introduced by one of the best-known French creators needs no emphasis. It appears in any number of different versions featuring both wide and narrow stripes. Unquestionably these have been the inspiration for certain of the latest models which keep to the same lines but gain new interest by the use of formal materials.

Modified Tones Chosen for Late Winter, Spring

By a quirk of fashion, raspberry promises to be one of the most popular shades in the late winter and spring. Wild raspberries and wild cherry are also modiste selections. Popcorn, a light yellow, and gooseberry green, are shades being selected for the southern resort season, as are cameo pink and a soft, greenish blue, known as vert de gris. They call these muted tones, for while they call to you, they don't yell at you.

1809 ABRAHAM LINCOLN 1865

Lincoln-Douglas Debate Greatest in Our History

Lincoln first attracted national attention in the Lincoln-Douglas debate in 1858. Concerning this debate a writer who heard it says: "Both with reference to the ability of the speakers and its influence upon opinion and events, it was unquestionably the most important in American history; that the speeches of Lincoln, published, circulated and read throughout the free states, did more than any other agency in creating public opinion which prepared the way for the overthrow of slavery." It was in speeches in that debate that Lincoln made frequent use of the declaration that "a house divided against itself shall not stand," a declaration that is both scriptural and self-evident in the application made by Lincoln: "I believe this government cannot endure permanently half slave and half free. I do not expect the house to fall, but I do expect it will cease to be divided. It will become all one thing or the other. Either the opponents of slavery will arrest the further spread of it and place it where the public mind shall rest in the belief that it is in the course of ultimate extinction, or its advocates will push it forward until it becomes alike lawful in all the states, old as well as new, north as well as south." The position of Douglas on the question of slavery was one of indifference. In his speeches he severely criticized the declaration of Lincoln and his application of a "house divided against itself." Douglas advocated with all his power the doctrine of "popular sovereignty"—a proposition which, as quaintly put by Lincoln, meant that "If one man chooses to enslave another no third man has a right to object."

Both Giants in Intellect.

At the time of this memorable discussion both Lincoln and Douglas were in the full maturity of their powers, says a writer in the Indianapolis News, Douglas being at the age of forty-five years and Lincoln four years his senior. Douglas had long been recognized as an able and popular speaker. In congress and in the United States senate he had been accustomed to meet the ablest debaters of the state and nation. His friends insisted that never, either in conflict with a single opponent, or when repelling the assaults of a whole party had he ever been discomfited. His manner was bold, vigorous and aggressive. He was ready and fluent in language, elegant in diction, fertile in resources and especially familiar with political history. Lincoln was at that time a trained speaker, having contended successfully at the bar, in the legislature and in the congress, and before the people with the ablest men of the West—including Douglas, with whom he always rather sought than avoided a discussion.

Such were the champions who engaged in that famous discussion before the people of Illinois, with the whole nation as spectators and audience, the political questions then pending—especially the vital question relating to slavery. It was not a single combat, but extended through a whole campaign. The meetings were held in the open air, for no hall was large enough to accommodate the immense crowds that assembled at each place to hear the discussion. The speeches were published in all the principal newspapers of the country and were eagerly read by a majority of the voters in the United States. The attention of the people was thus aroused and the whole nation was aroused on this one vital question of the day as it had never been before.

Douglas secured the immediate object of the contest in retaining his seat in the United States senate; but the vigorous logic, the honesty and sincerity and the great intellectual powers exhibited by Lincoln prepared the way for his nomination and election to the Presidency two years later—which was really the goal of Douglas' ambition and the ultimate object of the Lincoln-Douglas debate.

Douglas' Patriotism.

It is a touching incident and happily illustrates the patriotism that inspired both of these statesmen, widely as they differed in political policy and keen as had been their rivalry, just as soon as the life of the republic was menaced they joined hands to shield and save the country they both loved. When Abraham Lincoln walked out to the east steps of the capitol to deliver his inaugural address and take the oath of office as President of the United States—facing a great crowd of people, among whom were many who would gladly have taken his life—the man who accompanied him and who stood close by his side, the man who was the first to take his hand and pledge his unqualified support in the great task Lincoln had assumed as President of a distracted country, was Senator Stephen A. Douglas. Unfortunately for the country, Douglas died a few months later—June 3, 1861—and the cause of the Union and support of the administration was deprived of his great influence.

In response to invitations Lincoln visited the cities of Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, and other places in the East on his journey from Springfield to Washington—a journey that occupied about ten days, marked by official receptions and great crowds of people anxious to see and hear the man upon whom the destinies of the country depended. Every word of the President-elect on this journey was carefully scanned for some light by which to read the troubled and uncertain future. Measuring his words with unusual caution, he avoided any announcement of policy, but the country was nevertheless able to read between the lines that it had made no mistake in the man to whom it had confided the preservation of the government.

Pathetic Leave Taking.

Nothing in the history of Lincoln is more pathetic than the scene of his departure from Springfield on the morning of February 11, 1861, when he bade farewell to his old friends and neighbors. The scene is thus described by Lincoln's biographer:

"A throng of at least a thousand of Lincoln's friends and neighbors had gathered at the dingy little railroad station at Springfield to bid him goodby. It was a cloudy, stormy morning, which served to add gloom and depression to their spirits. The leave taking became a scene of subdued anxiety, almost of solemnity. Mr. Lincoln took a position in the waiting room where his friends filed past him often merely pressing his hand in silent emotion. The half-finished ceremony was broken by the ringing bell and rushing train. The crowd closed about the railroad car into which the President-elect and his party had entered. Then came the central incident of the morning. Once more the bell gave notice of starting, but the conductor paused with his hand lifted to the bell rope. Mr. Lincoln appeared on the platform of the car and raised his hand to command attention. The bystanders bared their heads to the falling snowflakes and standing thus his neighbors heard his voice for the last time in the city of his home."

May Have Foreseen Fate.

Lincoln's farewell address to his Springfield neighbors is expressed in words so chaste and pathetic that it reads as if he already felt the tragic shadow of forecasting fate. "No one," he said, "can realize the sadness I feel at this parting. I now leave, not knowing when or whether ever I may return. I go to assume a task more difficult than any that has devolved upon any chief executive since Washington. Without the assistance of that Divine Being who ever attended him I cannot succeed—with that assistance I cannot fail. Trusting in Him who can go with me and remain with you, and be everywhere for good, let us confidently hope that all will be well. To His care I commend you, as I hope in your prayers you will commend me. I bid you an affectionate farewell." And as he waved his hand in farewell to the old home, to which he was never to return, the fervent response from many of his old friends: "God bless and keep you; God protect you." They were "sorrowing most of all for the words he spake," impressed with a feeling that they would see his face no more.

THE TWO PENCILS

"I," said the little pencil, "have had a busy life. I have written so much that I feel as though I really were quite important."

In a Note Book.

"I," said the bigger pencil, "have had bad luck, and somehow I have the feeling that I will never write so very much. You see I have broken off twice and had to be sharpened again.

"My owner makes such a terribly sharp point that I can't help breaking.

"And then she bears down heavily with me, and that—together with a sharp point—just won't do.

"So it does look as though I would not get far with writing. I'm much bigger than you, little pencil, but even when I get small I fear I will not have much to my credit.

"You have really written a great deal, haven't you?"

"Oh, yes," said the little pencil, "I have had no bad luck, and I have led a very busy life.

"I have written many compositions. I have done any number of sums in arithmetic.

"I could tell you I know a great deal about arithmetic and I do sums well.

"My owner says I do them well. She says she always seems to think better when she has me.

"Now of course I really think she is flattering me, but still she does feel that way about it.

"I really don't know much about arithmetic though I can do sums nicely.

"But once I've answered the sums and they are down on the paper I couldn't tell you what they were at all.

"It is the same way about compositions. I've written many, but once they are written, they are written.

"I don't bother further in thinking about them.

"I do geography in the same way, and I haven't any different method for history.

"The dates when kings and queens and presidents and all famous people lived—I've written them down in a note book and my owner has handed in the note book and those dates were all correct.

"But really you must not give me too much credit for knowing a great deal.

"I could have some owners and not know a single thing, nor be able to write a correct answer.

"I really don't take all the credit to myself."

The Fairy Queen had been listening and she was much amused at the talk between the two pencils.

"Well," said the little pencil, "I won't me working much more after a bit, but still I have some more to do, for my owner says she is going to carry me in her coat pocket after this so that when she wants to write anything down she will always have a pencil ready.

"I'm just that size now.

"So I'll still be useful.

"I'll do whatever she wishes, and it is nice to think that I really did a good pencil's work and wrote the correct answers to sums and questions in history and geography and that my compositions were always well marked."

She Was Much Amused.

"You've certainly had a good education," said the bigger pencil, "and I fear I never will have it."

And the Fairy Queen went back to Fairyland and told the Fairies and the Brownies and the Gnomes and the Elves about the conversation between the two pencils.

Not That Far

"Well, Johnnie," said the minister, as he beamed on the son of a parishioner, "you are now going to school, so I suppose you can spell cat."

"C-a-t," replied Johnnie.

"Very good, now spell dog."

"D-o-g."

"Wonderful! Now spell hen."

"Aw, I ain't got that far yet."—Thrift Magazine.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

A farmer seldom looks at the thermometer. What's the use? The work has to be done.

Mrs. H. Davis, a resident of Daly City, passed away Monday at her home. On arrival Wednesday from Los Angeles of her mother, Mrs. J. Sibert, arrangements were completed for the funeral, which took place yesterday from the mortuary chapel of W. C. Lasswell & Co. Interment was in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

Sylvia Best, of Peoria street, is rapidly recovering from the mumps.

Residents are requested to lock all doors and windows on leaving their home, even if only for a short time. Prowlers have been too active for comfort.

Many of the local firemen and their families have witnessed the picture play known as "The Fire Brigade." This picture proves very interesting to the firemen, as well as the public in general.

It is reported that the cross streets of the Vista Grande part of Daly City will soon be rebuilt. This information is very welcome, because the streets in question have long been an inconvenience to the residents of that section.

Company No. 2, Daly City Volunteer Fire Department, will hold their first monthly whist party on Saturday evening, February 26, at their fire house on Vista Grande avenue, near San Diego avenue. Score cards 25 cents. Refreshments will be served after the game.

The schools are progressing advantageously, although the large number of new students coming in are crowding all the classes to excess. It is a fortunate thing that the Longfellow school, just over the line, has willingly accepted quite a few of the pupils.

The different baseball clubs of the grammar schools are practicing whenever they get a chance, with high hopes of winning victories for their own particular school. Charles W. Waub, the manual training teacher, takes considerable interest in encouraging and directing this activity.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Stoker, of Midvale, Utah, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Shulsen, 301 San Mateo avenue. Mrs. Stoker is Mr. Shulsen's mother. Mr. Stoker is one of the substantial citizens of Midvale and the owner of considerable property in that town.

S. Plansky, of Los Banos avenue, has just completed two three-room apartments on Knowles avenue. They are installed with the most up-to-date fixtures, including radio appliances. Mr. Plansky also has plans drawn for a five room bungalow on Los Banos that will be under construction next month.

If any merchant knows of a peddler operating in Daly City without a license, he will benefit himself and his fellow merchants by notifying City Marshal Doyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lorenz entertained a number of friends at their home last Saturday evening. The evening was spent in playing cards, after which a delightful supper was served.

The annual licenses were overdue beginning February 1. There is now a penalty of $1, and this will be increased $1 each month until paid. Call at Marshal Doyle's office and pay your license.

The P. T. A. of Jefferson Union high school will have a hamburger sale next Wednesday at 12 noon, for the students at the high school. Mrs. Kleemeyer and Mrs. Cameron are in charge next Wednesday. This will be a weekly event from now on.

The spell of sickness reported last week seems to be passing away. All of the serious cases are on the road to recovery. Health Officer Rankin made a trip from room to room of the schools, and doubtless his wholesome advice did considerable good.

Mrs. W. Jardine, Mrs. A. Chesney, Mrs. S. A. Landini and Mrs. A. Hilton enjoyed on Wednesday evening the picture "The Fire Brigade," at the St. Francis. Afterwards a light supper was enjoyed at a local restaurant. "Fire Prevention" is the slogan of the fire ladies.

An interesting time is assured all who attend. There will be dancing and refreshments. In the near future the Chapter will present a play. Watch this paper for name, date and place.

The Daly City Volunteer Fire Department baseball team will go up against the San Bruno firemen next Sunday at 10 a. m., on the Jefferson high school field. The Daly City team announces that any struggling young photographer may get a good picture, as the team is willing (also anxious) to pose for pictures just before the game. Superintendent of Waterworks Jack Kennedy will be the umpire.
